2010-2011
President's Report

WITH THANKS

Messages From Our President and our Board Chairman

Donald C. Seifert, Sr.
Board Chairman
Vance-Granville Community College

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, I want to take this opportunity to thank President Parker for the outstanding leadership he provided to VGCC during the past year and during his entire tenure. Since we selected Dr. Parker as our president in 2004, my fellow trustees and I have been impressed with his dedication to the role of the community college, his focus on strategic planning for the future, and his innovative leadership in a time of constrained budgets. Because Dr. Parker is truly a product of our community college system -- having been a community college student, instructor and administrator -- he has a unique understanding of the importance of community colleges in promoting personal development for our students and economic development for our region. Dr. Parker has insisted that VGCC not rest on its laurels but instead, he has emphasized continuous improvement and forward thinking, including new programs, enhanced facilities and increasing community support for student scholarships.

As we wish Dr. Parker the best in the next chapter of his career, we will move forward with confidence and determination to continue the important work of building on our college's tradition of excellence and promoting the global competitiveness of our students and our communities.

Randy Parker
President

Vance-Granville Community College, 2004-2011

Institutions of higher education like Vance-Granville Community College exist not only because people desire to learn but also because they have goals and aspirations, and they know they need education and training to make their dreams come true. Whatever career you have in mind -- nurse, law enforcement officer, engineer, doctor, welder, chef, lawyer, entrepreneur, or even community college president -- VGCC can get you started and open the way for you to take advantage of every opportunity. Indeed, VGCC serves as the gateway to endless possibilities for the people and businesses of our area.

Earlier this year, a new professional possibility presented itself to me, and I accepted the presidency of Guilford Technical Community College. To be named GTCC's next president was certainly an honor for me, but it was also a testament to the dedication and hard work of the outstanding VGCC trustees, faculty and staff members with whom I had the privilege of working during the past seven years. I am grateful to them and proud of all that we have accomplished together. I know that because of their excellence and the steadfast support of the community, the college will continue to successfully provide the education and training programs that our students and communities need in order to maximize their own possibilities.

NEW POSSIBILITIES

In Academic Advising

Below: Dr. Ruth Darling (standing) facilitates a meeting of VGCC's advising task force on the college's main campus in Dec. 2010.

During the fall 2010 semester, VGCC convened a 25-member Task Force to take a critical look at student advising processes and procedures. Leading the effort was nationally-known expert Dr. Ruth Darling, a consultant from the National Academic Advising Association (NACADA). A former president of NACADA, Dr. Darling serves as Assistant Provost for Student Success at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. The task force included faculty and staff members from all four of VGCC's campuses. Their findings will help make VGCC a national leader in developing an advising "curriculum" that guides students toward successfully realizing their academic goals.

NEW TRADITIONS:

The College Mace

At the May 2011 commencement exercises, President Randy Parker introduced a new college tradition: the VGCC Mace. Maces evolved over centuries from medieval weapons into ceremonial objects used by colleges and universities at formal occasions. The mace was designed by retired VGCC Dean of Student Services Frank Madigan and crafted by Michael G. Lassiter, Jr., a VGCC alumnus and owner/operator of Bullock's of Henderson. The black-and-gold top of the mace, or "boss," represents education and includes the college seal. Below the boss are the official seals of the four counties served by the college, Vance, Granville, Franklin and Warren, one on each side. "For decades to come, the College Mace will be a distinguished symbol of the leadership this institution provides to our four counties in education," President Parker said.

CRITICAL SUCCESS

Vance-Granville Community College continues to excel by a variety of measures, according to the 2011 Critical Success Factors report from the N.C. Community College System office. AWARD WINNING Faculty & Staff: Best in the State!

Out of all the instructors throughout the 58 colleges of the North Carolina Community College System, VGCC's own Marian C. Dillahunt-Andrews (pictured, right) stood out in 2011. An instructor of developmental English and reading, Dillahunt-Andrews received the R.J. Reynolds Excellence in Teaching Award, the highest honor for an educator in the community college system. She was recognized on April 14, 2011 at the system's second annual excellence event, becoming just the second VGCC instructor in history to receive the award. Dillahunt-Andrews has taught at VGCC since 2004. She founded and serves as an advisor for the VGCC Literary Arts Club. She is known for using innovative teaching strategies, and regularly speaks to fellow instructors at conferences, on topics including the use of technology and social media. Dillahunt-Andrews earned her bachelor's degree at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University, a master's degree in English literature at North Carolina Central University and a master of library science degree at East Carolina University. She is currently working toward a Ph.D. through Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Dillahunt-Andrews was named VGCC Faculty Member of the Year at the 2010 fall convocation. She was one of four outstanding employees honored with Glen Raven Excellence in Teaching and Leadership Awards. The others were:

LaTonya Steele

Jean Blaine

Dr. Angela Ballentine

Business Administration instructor LaTonya Steele, President's Leadership Award. Steele has taught at VGCC since 2004. Steele helped reactivate the college's Phi Beta Lambda chapter in 2008 and has served as chapter advisor for the business student organization ever since. Steele was a member of PBL herself when she was a student at Durham Technical Community College, where she earned an associate degree in business administration/operations management. Steele then graduated from North Carolina Wesleyan College with a bachelor's in business administration, and from North Carolina Central University with an M.B.A.

Coordinator of Prison Programs Jean A. Blaine, Staff Member of the Year. Blaine joined VGCC's prison education department in 2007, bringing experience from 27 years working in the Pennsylvania state corrections system. She has worked to improve college programs for inmates, and has developed new programs of study to enhance the employability of inmates once they leave prison. Blaine earned associate and bachelor's degrees in business administration from Elizabethtown College.

Vice President of Instruction Dr. Angela R. Ballentine, President's Leadership Award. Ballentine has worked at VGCC since 1991, first as an instructor and later as program head for Radiography and Dean of Health Sciences. Ballentine earned a bachelor's degree in biology at Greensboro College, a certification from the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital School of Radiologic Technology, and both a master's degree in adult and community college education and a doctorate in higher education administration at North Carolina State University.

POSSIBILITIES

OF THE FUTURE

During the 2010-2011 year, VGCC took several actions to plan for significant changes and additions to facilities in order to better serve the students and businesses of our region. In 2008, VGCC adopted a ten-year Facilities Master Plan to meet its building and growth needs, so that the college would have the initial plans for expansion in place should funds become available in the future. In 2011, college officials began working with the MBAJ architectural firm on an update of the Master Plan. The architects started researching how the college's programming, enrollment, facilities and available property have changed in the past few years, to see if the Master Plan needs to adapt to these changing conditions.

Also during the year, VGCC:

- Received preliminary plans from the architectural firm, Pearce Brinkley Cease + Lee, for a new Allied Health classroom/lab building on Main Campus, a 45,000-square-foot facility which would house all the college's current health care training programs in one location.
- Supported construction of a 12-room modular unit for Franklin County Early College High School on Franklin County property, adjacent to VGCC's Franklin County Campus. VGCC will support the transition to the new facility and agreed to let the county share the college's pump station and allow the construction of a retention pond for the modular unit on college property.
- Continued long-range planning on other college priorities, including a new, 43,000-square-foot classroom/library/student lounge building at Franklin County Campus
- Planned improvements at South Campus, including: increasing parking spaces, paving the existing parking lot, and renovations to building space being vacated due to the relocation of the South Branch of the Granville County Library to its new home.
- Purchased property opposite the college's main campus on Poplar Creek Road, which is slated to eventually become a new "Corporate Campus." This facility would house business and industry training programs and support economic development. Higher Education bond funds approved by the state's voters in 2000 were used to purchase the land.

VGCC's South Campus has shared its library with the Granville County Library system for many years, but the county library will soon be relocating to its own facility.

Construction began next to VGCC's Franklin Campus on the new modular unit that will provide space for Franklin County Early College High School.

YOUR GATEWAY TO...

Community & Economic Development

Project Skill-UP funds helped students complete Nurse Aide training at VGCC.

During the 2010-11 year, the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services asked VGCC to develop a new curriculum for mandatory in-service training for Direct Care Workers, who provide health-care and assistance to patients at mental health facilities. VGCC's South Campus in Creedmoor is conveniently located near the state's newest psychiatric hospital, Central Regional Hospital in Butner. Human Services Technology program head Tracy Wallace and instructor Cynthia Young wrote the "Therapeutic Care of Patients" training course, which has since been provided to other community colleges that have DHHS facilities in their areas. VGCC started training the first of around 2,000 employees in April 2011 on-site at state facilities. That was just one way in which VGCC's Community and Economic Development division met the training needs of businesses and local agencies in 2010-2011. Also during the year:

- VGCC received a Project Skill-UP grant from the North Carolina Tobacco Trust Fund Commission, which allowed the college to assist a total of 173 students during the fiscal year. Project Skill-UP funds helped students pay for tuition, books, fees and supplies in training programs such as Occupational Healthcare. The College has received Project Skill-UP funds each year since 2006, benefiting 455 students.

- Approximately 600 people browsed through booths set up by businesses and agencies from the four-county area at EXPO 2010, which was held Oct. 12, 2010 in the Civic Center. EXPO was organized by the VGCC Small Business Center and local chambers of commerce. This year's event marked the 20th anniversary of EXPO, which was first held in the Civic Center on May 10, 1990.

Sustainability

VGCC Automotive Systems Technology program head Fred Brewer shows middle school students the solar panel that is used to produce electricity to charge car batteries and jumper boxes.

There were several ways in which VGCC went "green" in 2010-2011, as the college responded to the increasing importance of environmental sustainability in the economy of the future.

- As part of the N.C. Community College System's "Code Green" curriculum improvement initiative, five faculty members represented VGCC on the state level as content matter experts for different sectors: Carpentry program head Keith Tunstall (Building Sector), Electrical/Electronics Technology program head Robert Hudson (Energy Sector), Biology instructor Button Brady (Environment Sector), Electronics Engineering Technology program head Wesley Williams (Engineering Technology Sector) and Automotive Systems Technology program head Fred Brewer (Transportation Sector).

- Keith Tunstall completed the requirements for certification by the Building Performance Institute as a Building Analyst/Energy Auditor, focusing on residential energy consumption and options to save money by conserving energy.

- Earth Day events were held both at Main Campus and at South Campus to help educate the college and community about conservation and the natural world.

- The VGCC Board of Trustees approved the addition of a new curriculum program, Sustainability Technologies, including several certificates.

- Along with other organizations, VGCC formed a "Green Jobs Partnership" with Interstate BioEconomic Alliance, the non-profit organization that is working to create the GreenTech Campus in Warren County. The partners plan to provide training in skills needed by the agri/bio research and manufacturing businesses locating at the campus.

ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIPS DURING 2010-2011

Volunteers from the Guild Gift Gallery at Maria Parham Medical Center endowed their fourth VGCC scholarship in 2011. Since 2008, proceeds from the gift shop have allowed the Guild to give over $100,000 to VGCC. The newest Presidential Scholar Award was named in memory of Leslie R. Carswell, a nurse and longtime MPMC employee. Pictured above are representatives of the Carswell family, the Guild, the hospital administration and VGCC.

Legacy Scholarship

A new VGCC scholarship honors the legacy of Julian Pernell, the college's original program head of Light Construction and later chair of the college's Trades and Industries division, and his wife, Elsie Gray Pernell, who was the college's first faculty member and retired in 1987 as the director of VGCC's Learning Resources Center. Mr. Pernell passed away in 2005 and Mrs. Pernell in 2011, after this scholarship was awarded for the first time. From left, VGCC Vice President of Institutional Advancement and Endowment director Jo Anna Jones and President Randy Parker receive contributions from Mrs. Pernell's niece, Marbeth Holmes, on behalf the family.
